Concert Lecture Series Opens With Anne Brown

Interview Reveals Singer Greatly Impressed Gershwin

By Alice L. Bull '46

Anne Brown, the well known soprano of "Porgy and Bess" was acclaimed enthusiastically by a large audience of over 500 at the first program of the concert-lecture series which was held Friday, November 3.

Miss Brown started her musical career at the age of four years when, standing on a table, she sang before the soldiers at Camp Mead. Her mother, who was also musical, sang to her when she was young and it was with her help that Anne Brown was accepted in the Juilliard School of Music when she was 15.

"Porgy and Bess"

Soon after she graduated she heard of George Gershwin's opera "Porgy," on which he was working at the time. With fear and trepidation she called at his home, and Gershwin was so favorably impressed with her singing that he gave her the leading role of Bess and later he changed the title to "Porgy and Bess" in appreciation of the skill with which Miss Brown portrayed Bess.

When she was still appearing in "Porgy and Bess," Miss Brown appeared with the N.B.C. symphony under Leopold Stokowski as soloist. Her singing proved successful here as well and it was then that she made the decision to leave the stage and go on concert tours. She has since travelled on a nationwide tour and has sung with many of the major symphony orchestras in the country.

Tour of States

Although she has seen so much of the country, Miss Brown, when asked of her impressions of Middlebury, laughingly said that she really loved it. "People from New York don't like cities, you know." However, she also went on to comment that she thought it too bad that there were no negro students.

Not only has she turned her talents to stage and concerts, but also she is soon to appear in "Rhapsody in Blue," a film

Audience Enjoys Quality And Large Variety of Songs

By Margaret B. Hood

Last Friday's concert was the kind of a concert that no one had to pretend to enjoy or try hard to look intelligent about. That is if he listened, like myself, with a completely unprofessional ear, one which is peculiarly partial to rich tones produced by vibrating chords of any kind. Anne Brown carried a full quality of voice into her highest register.

The program was largely familiar and entirely light, but it was a type of music suited to Miss Brown's voice and personality. In a generally light vein, there was variety enough for all. She was particularly fine on the spirituals while, of course, Summertime sounded exactly and only as it should sound.

A rasp in her breathing was at first noticeable, but the results achieved thereby soon made one overlook it. Knowing little about pronunciation, I can at least say that the words of each song were beautifully understandable. Miss Brown's presence on the stage has made one feel comfortable in its ease, however, the dramatics became too heavy in one or two numbers.

Judging by the reception given her, I would say that a large majority of the audience Friday night agreed with me and thoroughly gave in to enjoyment.

Laura-Lee Hopkins Heads Class of '47

At a meeting of the Sophomore class held in Pearsons' Recreation room at 7:00 on Tuesday, November 7, Laura-Lee Hopkins was elected President of the class of '47 for the present semester.

Alice S. Thorn, in the fourth term group, was chosen as Vice-President. Erestine L. Rolls, of the third term, was elected Secretary for the class. Jane L. Laux, a fourth termer, was selected Treasurer. Emily Cushing, a third termer, was elected to represent the class in their social chairman.

Miss E. Nichols Heads Admission Office of Women

Miss Ethel Colvin Nichols has joined the faculty of Middlebury College as Director of Admissions for Women and Dean of Freshmen. Miss Nichols returned recently to this country from Istanbul, Turkey, where she was a member of the faculty of the American College for Girls during the past four years.

Deans' Training

Previously, Miss Nichols had taken a course in Deans' training at the Boston University and had practiced teaching and social work in this country. While in Turkey she spent one summer as director of a girls' camp and another as assistant in the Service Center. "Social work is my hobby," she explained.

Pembroke Graduate

A graduate of Pembroke College, Miss Nichols holds an M.A. degree from Brown University. She also had additional graduate study at Rhode Island College of Education, Harvard University and Boston University where she is a candidate for the Ph.D. in English.

Men's College Holds Election For Assembly

Elections to the Men's Assembly, governing body of undergraduate men, took place last Monday night in Starr Hall and the Seeley House. One representative was chosen from each floor of north and south Starr and two from the Seeley House.

Those elected were: Donald Hackel '45, Mortimer Harman '46, Donald Hyde '46, James Ham '47, William Holland '47, Robert Cleary '48, Thomas Cremer '48, Alfred Rulfo '48, Robert Terrill '48, Edward Welles '48. Thornton Schock '45 is present speaker of the group. Of the above men, Cleary, Cramer, Rulfo, Terrill and Welles are members of this semester's entering class.

A medium for the expression of student opinion, the assembly has the added responsibility of enhancing cooperation between the Naval unit and the civilian body. Members of the Naval assembly meet with the civilian representatives whenever such meetings are deemed necessary. No definite date has been set for the first formal meeting of the Assembly, but will probably occur in the near future. Formerly, the group held their meetings on Monday of every alternate week.

B. Drury '45 Wins Student Union Post

Barabra J. Drury '45 was elected treasurer of Student Union to fill the vacancy made by the graduation of Dolly Greene Peach.

In her junior year Miss Drury was editor of the 1945 Kaleidoscope, and has participated in many campus activities. She is a member of the Pan-Hellenic Council and the W. A. A. Council.

Other Student Union officers include Wilma R. Bunce '45, president; Mary E. Wisotzkey '45, Chief Justice; Rebecca A. Fraser '46, Vice-President; and Margaret B. Rowland '46, Secretary.

Rev. M. Jenkins To Take Duties Of Chaplainship

The Rev. Marshall Jenkins has been appointed to serve at Middlebury in the double role of chaplain and associate professor in the newly established Department of Religion and in the Psychology Department. He will introduce two courses new to Middlebury, "The Religions of Mankind" in the November term, and "The Gospels" in the March term.

A graduate of Andover Newton Theological School, Rev. Jenkins has taken work towards his doctor's degree in education at Harvard and Columbia Universities. His graduate work was taken in the field of guidance.

Rising Interest

For ten years after graduation from Andover Newton, the Rev. Mr. Jenkins was pastor of the Union Church of Watertown, Mass., during which time the membership of the church doubled, and the attendance tripled. A $25,000 mortgage was paid in full during this time. Much of this growth was due to his interest in and counselling of young people and his leadership in young people's groups. One of these groups was composed of college students living in Watertown, which is located near Harvard, Radcliffe, and Wellesley.

Aside from his duties as pastor of the church at Watertown, Mr. Jenkins served for two years as president of the Water-

Several Changes Seen in V-12 Unit

As the Middlebury Naval unit weighs anchor for the fifth time to embark on another semester's work in its inland port of Vermont, some definite changes and adaptations are to be noted in its program for the next four months.

Battalion Staff

With the decrease in size of the unit comes the conversion from a regiment to a battalion. Heading the battalion staff is W. A. Hovey, who has been appointed battalion commander. Directly under his command are the following officers: battalion sub-commander, R. R. Filardi; battalion adjutant, G. D. Tracy; battalion security officer, F. W. Gubitz and battalion C. P. O., C. L. Cutting, Jr. The number of companies has been decreased to three, with company A headed by commander B. B. Arnold, company B, G. W. Boerner; and company C, J. A. Hassert. As in other semesters the companies will be organized into platoons. Present platoon officers, who will also compose the battalion staff, include for company A: platoon 1, S. D. Colburn; platoon 2, C. Karambelas; and platoon 3, E. H. Pearson; for company B: platoon 1, G. J. Schoeck; platoon 2, C. H. Regan, Jr., and platoon 3, H. L. Krummel, Jr.; and for Company C: platoon 1, J. R. Carpenter; platoon 2, N. J. Shrout; and platoon 3, R. F. Casey.

Cercle Francais To Hold Meeting On November 15

Le Cercle français will hold its first meeting of the new semester on Wednesday, November 15 at 8.00 p.m. in the Grand Salon of the Château.

Applications for membership may now be obtained either at the office in the Château or from Charlotte Broemel '46, president of the Club. They must be returned to either of these places before noon on Monday, November 13. Membership is open to upperclassmen as well as to freshmen who are living at the Château or are taking French 21 or more advanced courses. A list of members will be posted Tuesday, November 14 on the Château bulletin board.

The French Club Ball, always one of the most successful formal dances of the college year, will take place sometime during the current semester. The Ball is exclusive as well as free to French Club members and their guests, being included in the yearly dues of seventy-five cents. These dues should be paid at the first meeting of the season.

Freshman Week Includes Movies Speeches, Outing

Addressing a civilian student body of 591, Pres. Samuel S. Stratton officially opened the fall semester Thursday morning, November 2.

Remarking that for many it seemed more a continuation than a beginning, he stated, however, that, "We would not have ordered things differently, for none of us here today would wish to carry on at a peace-time tempo while our friends and fellow citizens and allies, both in civilian life and on battle fronts, sacrifice not only their comforts but their lives."

President Stratton then reviewed the changes which have taken place in the College since December 7, 1941.

Survival Quality

The President pointed out that, with the installation of the Navy unit of 500 men and the switch of an academic year of 48 weeks, in July of 1943, Middlebury demonstrated a "healthy survival quality" by adjusting to these external changes and at the same time preserving its essential character.

"Middlebury College has witnessed five major wars," President Stratton stated, "all of them destructive to its welfare and customary regimes. Yet the College has always remained dedicated to the fundamental objectives which prompted its founding. For nearly a century and a half, faculty and students have worked together on this hilltop seeking to find the truth; they have labored to combat ignorance and superstition and cynicism; they have sought self-improvement, not for its own sake, but that Middlebury graduates might go into the world better equipped to contribute to the good life and hence to enjoy spiritually, socially, and economically the fruits of a richer civilization."

Scripture Offers Challenge

President Stratton expressed the conviction that the scriptural question "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?" is at the core of a liberal education and that the historic New England colleges were founded to explore this unanswerable but challenging question. "I do not think it is an exaggeration," stated the president, "to say that just as long as this search into the nature of man and God remains basic to our purposes, Middlebury College will continue to survive the superficial impacts of wars and of social and economic changes."

In conclusion, President Stratton said: "Today, we open another college year. It is another year in which we, in this beautiful Vermont countryside, are conscious of the sufferings and sacrifices our young men are making in the heat and

Informal Dance To Open Season

Starting the social season for the semester, the Navy will sponsor a dance to be held Saturday, November 11, from 8 to 11 p.m. in McCullough gymnasium. The newly organized Navy Blue Panthers, headed by Cecil Steen A/S and composed of all Navy men, are going to play.

This is the first dance of the season, but the new Social Committee for the Naval Unit promises that there will be something going on almost every weekend this term. The committee includes: Edward J. Leach, headchairman; Stanley D. Colburn and Fred G. Wright, advisors; Robert G. Kushner and Sheldon L. Sobel, sub-chairman.

"Builders of the World Ahead"

Middlebury College has opened its 145th session. Never before in its history has it been functioning under such trying conditions. Our country is suffering great losses in the war; occasionally we can see a bit of daylight, but the end is far from view.

Perhaps questions have arisen in your minds as they have in ours—are we doing our share in gaining the ultimate victory as students in a small New England college? Are we worthy of completing our education when others have had to make such sacrifices?

These questions have two very definite answers. If we are taking full advantage of the opportunities offered here and fulfilling our obligations, we are justified in remaining. If we are wasting time and "just getting by" with the least possible effort, we should not be privileged to study in a liberal arts college.

Many students would have realized more fully the importance of their educational training they had heard the discussions at the Herald Tribune Annual Forum, held last month. There is a great deal of faith placed in us—candidates as rebuilders of the world. Older government workers, social organizers, and leaders in industry are putting the responsibility on our shoulders and are expecting us to make wise decisions in holding on to freedom after the war. They know that the process of reorganization and reconversion will cover a long period of time, a gradual process which we shall have to go over step by step.

The importance of our education in preparation for the future was obviously indicated in the fact that one-fourth of the Forum time was given to the subject, "Leadership through Young Minds." Legislators called for our assistance in government, stressed the potential value of youth matured in war sacrifice, urged elders to welcome youthful energy and courage. Practical idealists outlined plans for reconstruction work to be done in the new world; sociologists indicated the need for prepared men and women to help in improving social standards; military men pointed out new fields opening as a result of experiment during the war.

The young people who spoke at the Forum were willing to accept the challenge. They, as representatives of all earnest American students, pledged themselves to make the most of their education and to keep the keenness and eagerness of youth.

"To college with a purpose"—that is what we must keep in mind through our academic years. Each student must be self-reliant, creative, rational, responsible in assuming adult roles. More than ever the attainment of skill in particular fields is extremely important to self and to others. We must learn to know our own minds better, and through this broadening knowledge, become more tolerant of others. Our convictions must grow stronger and more stable. If we can go into the world with the courage to help rebuild in the patterns which we have learned in the educational process, we will justify our training and save our futures.

We must make the world's challenge our own. The value of our college education will undergo a severe test when the war is finally won. We who have been given extra advantages must "carry the torch and others will follow."

Welcome to Middlebury

To all new matriculates of Middlebury College, we extend a sincere welcome. We know that you will enjoy your stay here. You have already become acquainted with the courses, faculty, and traditions of this college and have been given a glimpse toward the future of your academic life. You have seen the change of seasons within one short week, the fickle hand of nature which is also a part of Vermont and Middlebury!

If you feel that you need some advice along the line, don't hesitate to approach the upperclassmen and faculty with your questions. You freshmen, more than ever before, are living together in large units which will limit contact with sophomores, juniors, and seniors. We realize that many new situations will come along to which you must adjust yourselves. Big sisters, faculty advisors, and head of extra-curricular activities are always ready to explain anything that might be puzzling you. There are, to start with, several matters which should be given special attention.

You have probably been overwhelmed by the great number of activities functioning on campus. Each one of them, undoubtedly has had some allure to you who are commencing a college career . . . Just one word of advice. There is a tendency and temptation among freshmen to join a large percentage of the activity groups sponsored on campus. They find themselves, several months from the opening of college, swamped with outside work and barely managing to fulfill their course requirements. When membership drives begin and meetings for tryouts are called, consider each activity wisely. Join only those in which you have a real interest. If you limit your activities, you will do a more thorough job in extra-curricular clubs and, at the same time, getting a stronger hold on your college courses.

You can make of Middlebury—its classes and activities—what you will. The facilities for a profitable year are here; it is up to you to take advantage of them. We are confident that each of you will.

THIS IS YOUR LIBRARY

WHERE—HOW—WHO?

The opening of another term finds new faces on the campus—faces of students who are beginning their work at Middlebury, and of faculty members, as well, who have not been here before.

Inevitably many, and it is to be hoped all of these, will be users of the Library. Therefore, will the upperclassmen, and the faculty members who are not strangers to Middlebury, pardon us if the contents of this week's column seem but a twice-told tale? Perhaps even a constant borrower may find here something unfamiliar and useful to him.

Bewildering as it may have seemed to the freshman being conducted through its rooms and hallways, the Library is not really difficult to use or to enjoy. Because the members of its staff want it to be both used and enjoyed by as many people as possible, it has occurred to us that an introduction to the staff and its work might be of some interest to the new Middleburian.

Staff Positions

The Acting Librarian, Dr. Gilmore Warner, is the general director of the Library. Its policies, scope, and activities are his concern. Doctor Warner will be glad at any time to confer with users of the Library, and to give or receive suggestions regarding its services.

Students doing reference work will do well to make the acquaintance of Miss Barbara Hubbard, Reference Librarian, without delay. Not only will she guide them to the most helpful reference books and explain the use of these books, but she will also be happy to make the resources of the Library's Government Document collection, full of current information hard to obtain elsewhere, available to them.

The Cataloging Librarian's work is highly important, although the student sees it only in its final form. To make not only books, but bound periodicals, music, and other material easily available, cards are made by which a volume may be located under its author, subject, or title. The card catalog in this Library is kept up to date by Miss Elizabeth Ives.

Any questions about the Library's collection of magazines and newspapers may be addressed to Miss Elizabeth Shoemaker, who also orders for the Library all new books which are added to its collection.

Location of Books

"A book out of place is a book lost." Since this old saying has many times proved itself to be true, the returning of books to shelves after use, and the inspection of shelves to see if books are clearly marked with their classification numbers and standing in their correct places, are an important part of the Library's work which is supervised by Mrs. John Robinson. Mrs. Robinson, with Miss Marguerite Foster, who does the Library's secretarial work as well, also repairs worn or damaged volumes and helps get new books ready for use.

The Middlebury College Library is fortunate in having a special room where are collected many rare and beautiful volumes, and is also fortunate in having for this room a custodian whose interest in books and reading is wide and varied. Miss Viola White is always happy to show to students or faculty the treasures of the Abernethy Collection.

There are also a number of student assistants, whose work is chiefly at the main desk or in the Reserve Book Room.

This brief Who's Who of the Library staff and summary of its work is intended as a guide for the reader, whether he comes to prepare for a class or to read "just for fun." For, after all, the whole purpose of the Library is to make books and related material available to you who come to read.

Questions Welcome

Therefore, questions are welcome; suggestions are welcome. We are never "too busy" to help you find what you want, because doing this is the most important part of our work. To freshmen, especially, we wish to say that no question is too trivial to ask. If you really want to know anything, inquire. We'll tell you if we can. We are looking forward to meeting you as you do required reading, choose new books for recreational reading, or keep up with the events of the world by means of the magazines in the Browsing Room. We hope to be able to point the way to new books and authors—new to you, although perhaps old in point of time.

For, as Carlyle has so well said: "All that Mankind has done, thought, gained, or been: it is lying as in magic preservation in the pages of Books. They are the chosen possession of men."

War Labor Board Appoints Stratton

Pres. Samuel S. Stratton of Middlebury College has been chosen as one of the four public members to serve on the regional War Labor Board in Boston, Mass.

Others working on the board are: Mr. Kenneth M. Sills, President, a member of the Bowdoin College faculty, Mr. Oliver W. Branch, Justice of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire, Mr. John S. Murdock, Justice of the Rhode Island Court, and Sumner H. Slichter of Harvard.

Appointment is made in accordance with Civil Service regulations and is subject to final review by the Civil Service Commission. An oath of office and personal history are required from an appointee and are administered by the director of administrative management of the regional board, in this case Mr. Reginald S. French.

Hadley Becomes Head of Trustees

New trustees and trustee officers were elected at their meeting at the close of the last semester. Egbert C. Hadley of Southport, Conn., was elected chairman of the board replacing Redfield Proctor who formerly held the position of chairman of the board and President of the corporation. These two positions have been separated and the Hon. John E. Weeks, former governor of the State of Vermont was elected President of the corporation.

Hadley is an Engineer at Remington Arms Co., and has been a member of the board since 1936. Weeks has been vice-president of the corporation; this office has now been abolished.

Linwood B. Law '21 of Buffalo, N. Y., was elected trustee-at-large, at this time and he will serve for five years. James A. Lobban '98 of Webster, Mass., was elected trustee from Region I to fill the unexpired term of Judge Walter H. Cleary who was elected a life Trustee.

Both Lobban and Sanford H. Lane, a former trustee from Darien, Conn., died on July 11. At the meeting held October 21 Horace P. Ford and Fred P. Lang, formerly term trustees, were elected life members.

STUDENT IN WAR IS CHAPEL TOPIC

Miss Rose Marion Simonton, a traveling secretary of the World Student Service Fund spoke today in Chapel opening the drive on the Middlebury campus. She spoke of the problems of students in the war torn parts of the world and gave some news about recent work of the WSSF.

She gave several suggestions for our own campus campaign and spoke with students who will be responsible for the drive. She also talked with professors and members of the administration.

Election Wake Is Big Mistake

By Barbara A. Blair ff

Men have been known to lose their shirts
At poker, stud, or otherwise,
And bridge fiends find the sunlight hurts
Their drooping and myopic eyes.
Some have declined from too much beer.
High livin' takes its toll all right;
But the world's worst fools stay up to hear
The late returns on Election night.

I was for Dewey (whisper it softly),
I was for Dewey (say it with care),
I was for Dewey and I said phooey
To Franklin D. Roosevelt's chances, so there!

Woe to the energetic students
Who sip warm cokes by their radios.
More curiosity than prudence
Brings misery when the long night goes.
8.00 p.m. and we're all right cheerful;
9.05 and we're holding out;
2.00 p.m. and we get an earful;
Reach for the peanuts and give a shout.

I was just 20 (alas, a minor),
I was just 20 (I had no vote),
I was just 20 but I said plenty,
Which explains the condition of my throat!

The American people have made their choice.
Let us unite, by all means let's.
I will accept the American's voice,
And pay off a couple of losing bets.
But who will relieve my throbbing head,
And make my stomach cease to rock?
Feed me an aspirin and make my bed,
And keep me awake in my 8.00 o'clock.

Oh, never again! (let me say it firmly),
Never again (on November eight),
Never again will my Baby Ben
Find me in such a shocking state!

ANNE BROWN

based on the life of George Gershwin. When asked which she preferred of the three stage, screen or concert stage, Miss Brown replied that she likes them all and enjoys the change to her concert tours for part of the year after working in the other fields.

After her performance Anne Brown graciously granted an interview and then agreed to sign autographs for the many students who had come back stage to see her. Her personality is friendly and charming as well as dynamic as she appears on the concert stage.

She was accompanied by Otto Seyfert, who gave a performance of piano solos for one section of the concert.

Middlebury's lodge had its gala opening today following a successful membership drive. This year it will again be at the Chi Psi Lodge, as it was when it opened for the first time just one year ago.

Open house was held last Saturday evening and Sunday for the benefit of acquainting new people with the Lodge's activities and reminding those already familiar with Middlebury's Commons Club to support the membership drive which extended from Sunday evening until today.

Student Co-Chairmen

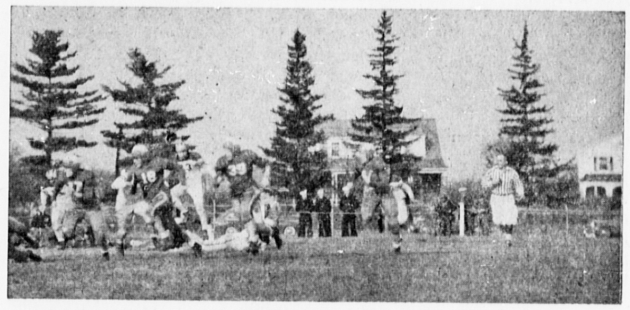
There are three student co-chairmen: Gladys Swift '46 for the women's campus, William Percival '46 for the civilian men, and a representative from the Navy which is not definite as yet.

Proceeds from the membership drive, over and above expenses, will be used to purchase a new record player. Mrs. John Avery will be hostess and chaperone again this year assisted by a number of women students who will serve at the snack bar.

Lodge Committee

In charge of the membership drive were: Katherine Pomeroy '47, and Barbara Grigg '47 on the women's campus, Eric Bunsel for civilian men and Jack Dawson A.S. for the Navy. The Lodge Committee consists of five representatives from each of the three sides of campus; women, civilian men, and Navy.

Gridiron Season Closes With Spirited Victory 21-7



Rally Precedes Victory; Coffee and Songs Top Game

For several days something had been brewing on campus. Where it started we do not know. Perhaps it was in the dining rooms where women were singing Middlebury songs with a new gusto. Certainly, the Undergraduate men's "Middnite" had lent a spark to the gathering spirit with its pilgrimage to the women's dormitories for some evening serenading. Something had happened.

Middlebury had tasted blood. For the first time in years, the Blue and White had run up a victory. We had a football team and that team was making good. We were dusting off our song and cheer books and itching to get back into the swing of college football. That Midd spirit may have been dormant, but now it was back for sure and behind the gym five men and women were swinging and jumping in rhythm to M-I-D-D-L-E-B-U-R-Y. We were going to have a rally.

"Here Comes the Band!"

Well, first there was a tuba, then a drum, then a glockenspiel. Then there were people, lots of people. A sweater-clad leader waved a large megaphone and we were off, tuba and all. Up Chapel hill we marched and "Gamaliel Painter," "Victory" and the "Old Midd Spirit" marched with us. Past Gifford and down the road came our troop, growing larger as we passed each dormitory. Into the gym went this crowd and miraculously enough, the tuba along. The old floors shook with the stamps of G. Painter's cane and the walls heaved with cheers for the shy but confident members of the team who came out for a bow. The drums beat, the crowd cheered, the cheer leaders bellowed and roared, and we were ready for the game.

Middlebury's team won by—oh well, no need to go into that.

"The Old Midd Spirit"

So the season ended and we all paraded off contented. Upperclassmen had in some instances seen Middlebury's first victory since they arrived on the Blue and White campus. Freshmen had their first taste of the college spirit in which they were to live for the next four years. Our team was proud and rightfully so. It had been a victorious day for the Navy at Old Chapel Bell Rings As Midd Trounces Univ. of N. H.

By Peter E. Funck

Last Saturday afternoon and evening the bell in Old Chapel sent its peals over Middlebury campus. Our team had scored its second victory of the season over the University of New Hampshire by a score of 21-7.

Credit for the bell's ringing and the appearance of Gamalial Painter's cane can not be given in particular to any one or two men. The team worked in perfect unity with the linemen giving break after break in New Hampshire's line for the determined advances of the backfield. The majority of Middlebury's first downs (fifteen in all) were gained by constant and steady running drives with very rare passing attacks. New Hampshire tended more towards passing and offered a right wing pass play that was difficult to control.

Battle for Downs

New Hampshire showed a great deal of power in the first half of the game and kept the ball almost constantly in Middlebury's territory. The majority of their eight first downs were scored in this half, which was highlighted by a gruelling struggle for six downs on Middlebury's one yard line. However, towards the close of this period, Midd's eleven turned the tide with a seventy yard march deep into New Hampshire's field and kept that team on the defensive for the main part of the game thereafter. The half ended with Midd's team on the opposition's one yard line.

Middlebury kicked off to open the second half and the play began on New Hampshire's thirty-five yard line. An attempted punt into Midd's territory was blocked and our eleven found themselves once again on the scoring side of the fifty yard line. Two touchdown plays were recalled from our team on penalties and the ball passed into the possession of

Spanish House Shows Spirit

To make the Spanish house as popular, as well known, and as important as the Château is the aim of Mrs. Emelia F. L'Hommedieu, the new head of the house.

The Spanish House, formerly called Wright House, was started last year with ten students the first semester and nine the second. The girls ate at their own table at the Château among their French speaking rivals. The same system is being followed this year.

Meeting Place

The House has served as the meeting place for El Circulo Espanol, and the girls have entertained both the Spanish faculty and President Stratton at tea.

This year, under the direction of Mrs. L'Hommedieu, the house is carrying on the work with eight freshmen living there. Mrs. L'Hommedieu has come from the University of California where she was in charge of the same sort of a house, called the Casa Espana. It has been recognized by the Pan American Union as an important and successful organization for furthering good will. She hopes that perhaps the Middlebury College Spanish House might some day have similar distinction. "The need for Spanish is cultural as well as commercial," she said.

South American Experiences

Mrs. L'Hommedieu was born in Bogota, Colombia, South America. Besides being in charge of the Casa Espana, she has traveled to many campuses all over the country, Middlebury ranking high in her favor. Yet, she mentioned that the California climate and the atmosphere of the Spanish settlers are more conducive to Spanish than the cold of a Vermont winter. Having heard about the cold severity of New England inhabitants, she was amazed to find friendly faces to greet her everywhere. With this feeling of amity, she hopes that the furthering of Pan American relations will take on the significance it has in California.

To make things even more authentic, a girl from Quito, Ecuador, is here to live in the house. With this impetus, Spanish and a better understanding of our southern neighbors should flourish.

DR. JOHN THOMAS TO SPEAK SUNDAY

Dr. John M. Thomas, both a graduate and past president of Middlebury will speak at the Vesper service next Sunday.

After holding the presidency of Middlebury from 1908 to 1921, he was in succession, president of Pennsylvania State College, Rutgers University and Norwich University.

Fifty-Nine Graduate in Fall; Honors, Degrees Conferred

Pres. Samuel S. Stratton addressed a graduating class of 59 students at exercises which combined the baccalaureate services and conferring of degrees on October 23 in Mead Memorial Chapel.

In his address, President Stratton, speaking of the impact of the war on college life as "relatively slight," stated: "I say relatively slight because if you have experienced disturbing changes in the academic routines and customs, there have been preserved for you, nevertheless, the timeless values inherent in a liberal education. Perhaps you are in a mood to question such values or, indeed, to wonder if you have ever glimpsed them. From my own experience and the experience of others, let me assure you that these values of which I speak, if obscure to you now, will become rich in significance as you continue your education in the less ideal environment of the School of Experience."

Values in a Liberal Education

The president then mentioned as a few of these timeless values the ability to make objective analysis, the willingness to view present problems with historical perspective, and the awareness of the spiritual dignity of man as an individual.

Denying that the purpose of a liberal education is to provide "book knowledge," President Stratton said, "On the contrary, in these classrooms and laboratories, it is my hope you have discovered that formal education is only the first step to becoming a liberally educated person, and that you will want to make your continued self-education a life long pursuit."

The president then quoted Judge Hand, who wrote: "Not until you have the courage to meet yourself face to face; to take true account of what you find; to respect the sum of that account for itself and not for what it may bring you; deeply to believe that each of you is a holy vessel, unique and irreplaceable; only then will you have taken the first steps along the path of wisdom."

In conclusion President Stratton then stated: "In conferring degrees upon you this morning, I do so confident in the knowledge that you are fully prepared to take this first step along the path of wisdom."

Senior Week Events

In addition to the services Sunday morning, several of the traditional Senior Week events were held by the graduating class. Friday afternoon the senior women went to Breadloaf for their class picnic. Saturday morning the class tree was dedicated and planted. The dedication was made by Audrey J. Nunnemacher, class president. In the afternoon a tea was given by President Stratton for the graduating students and their parents in Forest Recreation Hall, where local paintings dating from 1800 to the present were on exhibition.

Following the tea, both parents and students attended a buffet supper at which academic honors were awarded the following students, degrees to be conferred cum laude: Harold H. Lary, Selden B. Thomas, Barbara P. Abel, Eleanor R. Burt, Elizabeth Gartner, Hedvig C. Hogg, Josephine A. Kirk; appointed to Phi Beta Kappa: Josephine A. Kirk. The following departmental honors were awarded: honors in biology, Elizabeth B. Jones; honors in drama, Josephine A. Kirk; high honors in economics, Elizabeth Gartner; honors in history, Howard A. Arenson; high honors in political science, Hedvig C. Hogg; honors in psycholgy, Jane I. Teague.

Immediately following the supper college movies were shown in Mead Memorial Chapel and a short program of college and class songs was given by the senior women. At this time Miss Nunnemacher gave a short, informal talk in behalf of the entire graduating class.

Students Graduated

Those students receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the services Sunday morning were: Howard A. Arenson, John Calhoun, Robert P. Darrow, Harold H. Lary, John J. McGarry, Richard J. (Freshman Men and Transfer Students Will Appear In Next Week's Issue of CAMPUS*)*

Summer Termers Enjoy Midd's Life To Fullest Extent

"Hi! I didn't know you were coming back for the summer." That was the first greeting, we heard this July, but in a short time the entire College was acquainted. The Navy had the same enrollment, but the regular colleges had shrunk to living in only four of the dorms: Starr Hall, for the men; Hillcrest, Painter and Wright House for the women.

The campus, however, was far from deserted the first few weeks. There was a record-breaking enrollment in the language schools. The French school had 260 enrolled and there were 36 in the Italian school here on campus.

Off-Campus Schools

No Saturday classes were held during the summer term, and there were no chapel services. Despite the fact that there were no regular activities and that none of the organizations were functioning, the campus was far from dead. The Navy held several Saturday night gym dances, and there were many impromptu affairs. Due to the long week-ends, there was always something going on.

Lodge Activities

The Lodge opened late, but it saw lots of business, during its hours on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights. The committee, William Percival, Charles Butts, Jean Bender and Charlotte Anderson, aided by Mrs. John W. Avery, opened the Chi Psi Lodge and made all the arrangements. The Black Panthers played fairly often after the Friday night reviews, and there was always dancing to the records, card games and eating.

A perfect inspection for the Navy Unit, the first time at Middlebury, was a highlight of the term. All 447 trainees were declared "4-O" by Lieut. Comdr. Alderman after the personal inspection—not a button missing nor a shoe unshined. The regiment got a 48 hour leave as a reward.

Annapolis Appointment

During the summer, Louis G. Churchill, Jr., of Exeter, N. H., a trainee here, received a principal's appointment to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. He is scheduled to enter at the opening of the July term next year.

Company D won the inter-company competition which had been going on all semester. It was under the command of A/S William Barber and Eleanor Drake was the color girl. The other color girls were: for Co. A, Charlotte Anderson; Co. B, Eleanor Burt; Co. C, Katherine Rowley.

Saturday there was the inspection, the review, the football game with the University of Connecticut, the regimental staff dinner and the formal. It was hazy and warm for the review, but the regiment looked wonderful as the color girls reviewed them. We lost the game, but it was fun anyway.

The slight rain before the formal didn't dampen the spirits that night. The High School gym was decorated for autumn with a hay cart in one corner lending atmosphere. Mal Hallett and his band provided the music. Forest Hall had been opened for guests, including a number of girls from Bennington, so the attendance at the formal was large.

Carter to Resume Music Instruction

After a leave of absence to serve in the United States Army, Alan Carter has resumed teaching duties in the Music Department of Middlebury. While in the Army, Mr. Carter was commissioned a Captain, and played an active part in arranging soldier's participation in musical activities.

While on active duty Mr. Carter was attached to the Music Section. As a music officer in this country his responsibilities included taking care of installations made by musical demands and assisting in preparing self-entertainment programs for units going overseas. Mr. Carter finds that soldiers indulge in "long-hair" music as well as the popular forms of swing.

Although music has become an important part of the soldier's lives the organization of such things other than those authorized by the War Department take much time to prepare.

Helped Make V-disc Recordings

One outstanding experience in Mr. Carter's army life was the conducting of the First Service Command Symphony Orchestra, to make V-disc recordings. In March the ensemble rehearsed in Symphony Hall, the home of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Mr. Carter was instrumental in establishing the "First Service Command Special Service Mobile Music" an experiment in this country. The versatility of this organization can be seen in its capability to play as a military band, three dance orchestras, and a small symphony orchestra, each or all of which can be sent to installations having no organized bands or orchestras.

Army Offers Opportunities

Mr. Carter is happy to be back in Middlebury in order to continue his work in the College, but appreciates the opportunity he had in the army to be able to continue his music and help the servicemen in their self entertainment musical programs.

Upon returning Mr. Carter will lead the Vermont State Symphony orchestra which he founded in 1935 as well as resume the duties which he has had in the College since 1938.

Lt. Col. Heinrichs Returns to Midd

Lieut. Col. Waldo H. Heinrichs returns to the History Department of Middlebury after having served in the United States Army Air Forces for two and a half years. During this time he has had a wealth of experience in Combat Intelligence work both in this country and aboard.

After leaving Middlebury in the middle of May in 1942, Colonel Heinrichs spent one year in the Air Defense Wing at Norfolk, Va. He has just returned from England where he spent seventeen months as Combat Intelligence Officer of the 66 Fighter Wing of the VIII Fighter Command of the 8th Air Force.

Receives Decorations

Colonel Heinrichs wears the Bronze Star received for his efforts in "briefing" the news of war developments to the officers and men of the command so they could have a knowledge of action in other theatres of war. This was a unique feature of the Intelligence work of the 66th Wing. The citation was made to Colonel Heinrichs on September 13, 1944 and within two days after having received the Bronze Star, Colonel Heinrichs was awarded an oak leaf cluster for the "Operational History of the VII Fighter Command of the 8th Air Force" which he had written in spare time since D-Day. Upon its completion, Lieutenant General Carl Spaatz designated Colonel Heinrichs to personally take his "eighty-two pounds of history" to Washington, but it is believed the book will not be released for publication until after the war.

Assumes Former Duties

At present Colonel Heinrichs is completing his terminal leave which began two weeks ago. On Monday he assumed duties in the college by teaching American history to V-12 students and by lecturing to Contemporary Civilization classes part time. In March, when Prof. Pierre deLanux leaves the staff permanently to return to France, Colonel Heinrichs will teach the Contemporary Civilization course which he had previously developed since coming to Middlebury in '34.

Playhouse Party Set for Saturday

Middebury College Players are holding open-house at the Playhouse Saturday afternoon, November 11, from 2.00 to 4.00 p.m., in an effort to acquaint the freshmen and Navy with the numerous opportunities offered to anyone interested in any phase of the theatre.

So many improvements have taken place in the Playhouse during the summer that work on future productions will be facilitated greatly. New curtains, new interiors, new make-up and make-up kits, flats, tools and paints are among the changes and additions to the equipment. These additions will be featured Saturday plus special exhibits in lighting, staging, and make-up. The Navy is especially invited to see these technical exhibitions.

Four newly initiated members of the Players, Phyllis Faber '46, Agnes Fink '45, Frances Horning '45, and Doris Mazon '46 will present a short skit. An explanation of the point system used in working to become a member of the Players will be given and refreshments will be served.

town Federation of Churches, and as moderator of the Union Church Conference of Massachusetts and Rhode Island for three years.

Living Religions

The Rev. Mr. Jenkins is giving during the November term a course in the religions of mankind. The purpose of the course is to get students to appreciate the living religions of mankind and to understand the influence they have on the people who believe in them. Some of the religions to be considered are Hinduism, Jainism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Judaism, Zoroastrianism, Mohammedanism, and, Christianity.

In the March term, a course will be given in the Gospels, treating them not as historical writings, but dealing with the ethical implications contained in the teachings of Christ.

In his role of chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Jenkins urges students to discuss their problems with him, not only problems of religion, but any human problem. Mr. Jenkins will also be in charge of the chapel services.

Housing Facilities

By reversing the summer ratio of Navy to women on campus the administration has had to make new housing arrangements. In addition to living in Gifford Hall in slightly closer quarters, the Navy occupies the DU fraternity house since vacating Hepburn Hall for the women.

Although the whole Naval unit has been decreased, some fifteen Dartmouth V-12 men have been transferred to Middlebury in an effort to make room for transfers to Dartmouth following a more specialized program. Two former Middlebury officer candidates, who were training previously under the aviation program, have returned to the V-12.

Because of laboratory courses the Naval unit will not attend Chapel on Wednesday as a group.

Color Ceremony Planned

Continuing as in the two semesters under Commanding Officer Alderman, the unit will have the customary color ceremony at the conclusion of this semester. At this ceremony each company will elect a color girl from the Women's College. Company competition will be judged upon quarters and personnel inspection each week. Because the current semester is the winter term the weekly Friday night parades and drills will be discontinued. Saturday morning at 8.00 is the present time for personnel and quarter inspection to take place.

MIDD TROUNCES

New Hampshire. The Blue and White's first score came when a fumbled center was recovered by R. J. Richard and carried over the goal. Karambelas then made the first of his three successful place kicks to bring Midd's tally to seven. An intercepted pass on New Hampshire's field gave Midd her cue for another goal-making drive, the ball carried over this time by P. A. Barrett.

N. H. Scores

In the final quarter, a New Hampshire rally carried that team to their scoring play of the afternoon. The final minutes of the game saw Midd's final drive through New Hampshire to bring the score to a conclusion of 21-6.

FRENCH BECOMES NEW FINANCE HEAD

Mr. Irwin K. French became Business Manager of Middlebury College early in September. Mr. French comes to Middlebury from Babson Park, Mass., where he has held a similar position with the Babson Institute since 1930.

cold and mud, in the fatigue and physical pain of war. It is the beginning of a year in which we pledge that our efforts here will make us worthy of their sacrifices. It is the beginning of a year in which we pray that we may live up to the hopes and wishes and aspirations of those who love us."

Fall Enrollment

As the fall semester starts, the enrollment of the College is as follows; 71 in the Men's College; 520 in the Women's College. The Navy V-12 unit now consists of 279 students.

Special activities were held for entering students during Freshman Week. Sunday evening, October 29, an informal assembly was held in Mead Memorial Chapel, followed by group meetings with the students' faculty advisers. Monday morning and afternoon the new students registered and were conducted on a lecture tour of the library. Monday evening a social hour was held at the Playhouse during which technicolor movies of "Your Middlebury" were shown and College songs were sung.

Tuesday afternoon, President and Mrs. Stratton entertained the new students at a reception in their home. Wednesday afternoon, Dean Mary A. Williams gave an informal talk to the freshman women at a meeting of the Student Union of the Women's College in Mead Memorial Chapel. The Student Union held reception for new students Wednesday afternoon and evening at which heads of student organizations described briefly the activities of these organizations. On Friday afternoon, the annual Mountain Club Freshman Outing was held on the women's athletic field. Freshman Week activities closed with the traditional Midd Nite entertainment held Saturday evening in the High School gymnasium.

Two Secretaries Compliment Staff Of Administration

The Administration of Middlebury College announces several changes in their personnel. All resignations and appointments have been made as of November 1.

The Language Schools now have a new secretary, as Mrs. William F. Madden has resigned to go to Oklahoma to join her husband. Mrs. Harold E. Riegger, who was formerly secretary to Prof. Russell G. Sholes, is the present secretary. The resignation of Mrs. Janice Dewey, former secretary of the Breadloaf School of English, has also been announced.

Miss Barbara Maxwell is now secretary in the office of Pres. Samuel S. Stratton.

Mrs. Sarah T. Vickers, a graduate of Middlebury, is continuing her duties as assistant to the College Press Editor, a position which she assumed in July.

RALLY — COFFEE

Notre Dame on the same day. But coffee and doughnuts were waiting for us at Forest Rec. and we soon found ourselves in a wild scrimmage around the serving table. There were more songs, more cheers, more doughnuts. The hard-working pianist hammered out "My Wild Irish Rose," "Victory," "Home on the Range," "Anchors Aweigh" and scores of others. Navy blue, Starr Hall's contingent, innumerable women, all joined in together to share that spirit that was, is, and always will be distinctively Middlebury's.

Well, right now the bell of Old Chapel is pealing its strongest over the campus.
